Susanne Evens founded AAA Translation directly following the move from her hometown, Aalen, Germany. Her entrepreneurial success and immigrant experience have inspired her to live a life of giving through cultural exchange. She has been a St. Louis Mosaic Ambassador since the organization's inception as well as having served on the boards of the World Trade Center- St. Louis, the German American Heritage Society, and The Missouri Humanities Council and Trailnet. Evens' work has been featured in National Public Radio (NPR), BusinessWeek.com, Bloomberg Business News and many St. Louis Publications.

Going further, Evens has been the president for over 10 years of the St. Louis – Stuttgart Sister Cities program, the oldest sister cities partnership in St. Louis, established in 1960. Throughout her presidency she has organized major events and fundraisers, maintains the exchange programs between three local high schools and three high schools in Stuttgart, and three local universities and the University of Stuttgart, Germany, and has facilitated official trade delegations between the Sister Cities.

AAA Translation will continue fostering diversity and inclusion at the workplace by spreading information about St. Louis Mosaic Project by distributing literature on the programs as appropriate, participating in Mosaic volunteer opportunities, and encouraging those involved with the company to become Mosaic Ambassadors.

About the St. Louis Mosaic Project

The St. Louis Mosaic Project was launched in 2012 in response to an economic impact report that showed St. Louis was lagging in immigrant growth and highlighted the potential economic benefits of increasing its foreign-born population. The Mosaic Project is a regional initiative that is professionally managed by St. Louis Economic Development Partnership, World Trade Center and a 27-member committee. Its goal is to transform St. Louis into the fastest growing major metropolitan area for immigration by 2020 and promote regional prosperity through immigration and innovation.
