

Presented in partnership with the St. Louis Mosaic Project

ONE Region MANY Flavors

As people from different cultural backgrounds move into a region, they bring with them their folkways, beliefs, and food. In recent years, St. Louis has seen an explosion of new cuisines and restaurants, many of which were started by immigrants and have become part of the fabric of our community. Join us for three tasty programs that explore the influence of immigration on our local food scene.

Food Heritage Stories

Wednesday, June 1 | Food trucks: 4:30pm; Program: 6pm | Museum's Front Lawn and MacDermott Grand Hall | Free

Beginning at 4:30pm, purchase a variety of ethnic foods from a selection of food trucks parked on the Museum's front lawn. At 6pm, join us in the MacDermott Grand Hall as the St. Louis Mosaic Project presents the Mosaic Immigrant Food Awards and shares stories of food heritage in St. Louis.

South Grand International District Walking Tour

Wednesday, June 15 | 10:30am to 12pm

Meet at the International Institute of St. Louis, 3401 Arsenal St., 63118

$15 per person (covers appetizers) | Space is limited, and reservations are required: mohistory.org or (314) 361-9017

Take a stroll through the South Grand International District, visit businesses that were aided by the International Institute of St. Louis, learn about the history and development of the area, and enjoy light appetizers at a selection of ethnic restaurants.
