True Manufacturing Becomes 54th Ambassador Company with the St. Louis Mosaic Project

(ST. LOUIS, MO) --The St. Louis Mosaic Project is pleased to announce True Manufacturing, a world-class manufacturing company, as the 54th Mosaic Ambassador Company. True Manufacturing shares the St. Louis Mosaic Project's goal of welcoming and supporting internationally trained immigrants, so they find professional and personal success. Their vision encourages diverse perspectives, celebrates cultural differences, and fosters an inclusive workplace culture.

True Manufacturing, renowned for its wide range of American-made commercial refrigeration products that exceed industry quality standards, demonstrates dedication to creating a workplace that reflects and embraces St. Louis' diverse, foreign-born population.

As a Mosaic Project Ambassador Company, True Manufacturing will share job openings on Mosaic's website which reaches a broad cross section of internationally trained foreign-born professionals who seek positions that match their home-country experience. The company will also explore ways to reach a larger international community by participating in events and activities organized by the non-profit World Trade Center-St. Louis, of which Mosaic is an initiative. This includes connecting True Manufacturing's Employee Resource Groups to Mosaic and its partners, including the World Trade Center-St. Louis' Sister Cities program and the International Institute, so employees are aware of the region's foreign-born community and opportunities to volunteer with groups that serve immigrants and refugees.

About the St. Louis Mosaic Project

The St. Louis Mosaic Project, launched in 2012 under the St. Louis Economic Development Partnership and the World Trade Center-St. Louis aims to make St. Louis the fastest-growing US major metropolitan area for immigration by 2025. As a public/private partnership supported by a diverse mix of regional leaders, the St. Louis Mosaic Project fosters a welcoming environment for immigrants, celebrates their contributions, and promotes economic growth in the region.
